Description of School

Lehigh University has beautiful, suburban campus nestled in the Lehigh Valley, Pennsylvania's third largest metropolitan area. Bethlehem is conveniently located less than 90 minutes from New York City, Philadelphia, and the Pocono Mountains. Founded in 1865, Lehigh University is a medium-sized, private institution uniquely positioned to prepare students for addressing real world issues. Big school opportunities and small school personalization provides students the flexibility to pursue and combine studies across arts, humanities, science, business, social science, education, and engineering. Interdisciplinary study-- builds an understanding of connections between fields, and undergraduate research encourages students to pursue answers to open-ended questions. Faculty and staff are readily accessible and mentor students. The Mountaintop Experience combines several of Lehigh's academic philosophies: collaborative, interdisciplinary, hands-on research with faculty mentorship and real world application. Further, global experiences are plentiful -- including research, paid international internships, a partnership with the United Nations, and over 200 study abroad programs in more than 60 countries. As a result, students are challenged to take intellectual risks, to work collaboratively and across fields and cultures, and to affect sustainable change. An intrinsic component of the Lehigh experience is the blend of rigorous academics with a full range of living and learning experiences beyond the classroom. Lehigh is a residential campus with an active student body that celebrates our many traditions. Competitive Division I athletic teams are frequently ranked nationally and regionally, while simultaneously boast one of the highest student-athlete graduation rates in the country. A strong alumni network contributes to the excellent internship opportunities and job placement -- for over 25 years, Lehigh has averaged 96% placement into career-related opportunities within six months of graduation!
